NOTES

Part 2 of the two-part edition.

The fact that everything has an opposite holds an inexplicable but understandable attraction for all of us. Too much wine these days seems to strive toward a singular ideal at the sacrifice of variety and downright opposite examples of beauty.

Syrah and Cabernet are both by their nature dark, brooding and serious, like the unknown hidden in the very earth beneath our feet – qualities that are fully embraced around here. These two are ideal partners, like friends that are cut from the same cloth in their fundamental nature, yet have their own distinctive personalities.

Ultimately it is the mystery in their darkness that makes them so intriguing.
